

Your privacy is very important to us. The information we request from our contacts will only be used by Rocscience Inc. to send information by email and to mail brochures, newsletters and other items advertising the Rocscience software and services.

Rocscience Inc. does not share our contact information with any third parties without gaining permission first. All articles, research papers, web links, references to other companies or quotations from customers appear on our website with the prior knowledge and permission of the company or individual named.

We will take reasonable and prudent precautions to insure that your personally identifiable data is protected against unauthorized access, use or disclosure. If you do believe, for any reason, that Rocscience Inc. has not followed these principles, please contact us at software@rocscience.com.

If you wish to have your name or company removed from our email or mailing list, please contact us and we will promptly do so.

Rocscience Internet Updates:

By default all Rocscience programs that run in Windows now check the Rocscience website (via the Internet) when they start to make sure you are running the latest version. For example, if you start Dips 5.05, and Dips 5.06 is available, you will be automatically notified, that a new version is available. This is done as a convenience for our customers, so users of Rocscience software can be assured they are always running the latest version available.

During the entire update process, no personal information, no identifying information, and no serial numbers are sent. The only information that is sent from your computer to the Rocscience website is the program name and the version number. For example "Dips_5.07".

If you want to disable this feature, go into the program and un-check the following option:

Help->Product Updates->Check for Updates Automatically

If you disable this feature, you should periodically check the Rocscience website to make sure you are running the latest version.
